The BBC is in the midst of screening a captivating documentary series entitled Around the World in 80 Faiths. Anglican vicar, Peter Owen Jones, visits each continent in a quest to examine the religions, beliefs and traditions that characterize and give expression to man's spiritual nature.

In Episode 4, he travels to the Middle East to explore the roots of religious conflict in the region, but ends the episode on a rather different note: proclaiming the unifying message of the Baha'i Faith! In spite of some factual inaccuracies, this is an interesting clip to watch.

I hope that this is the future declares Owen Jones, emotionally, as he brings the episode to a conclusion. It surely will be.
